

Benchmarking reveals that scDNAm imputation is governed not only by model architecture, but critically by data difficulty, scale, and evaluation settings. These insights motivate complementary model-view and data-view optimization strategies.